CROWE TO ASK TRIAL JULY 15

WEST IS CHOSEN
SECRETARY OF NATIONAL G.O.P.

Upham Retires as the Treasurer.

Cleveland, O., June 4.—[Special]
Roy O. West of Illinois tonight was selected as secretary of the Republican national committee, succeeding George Lockwood of Indiana.

Fred Upham of Chicago, who for years has been in charge of the finances of the party, has decided to withdraw as treasurer of the committee. His successor has not been chosen.

A third big figure in the control of Rep.-Lean party organization is to retire as soon as the national convention ends. This is John T. Adams, of Walter Law.

It is expected that Mr. Upham will be made national committeeman from Illinois, succeeding L. Y. Sherman.

West Silent Like Coolidge.

Mr. West, who is the only man in American politics who has gained a name for silence that compares with that of President Coolidge's reputation, won the favorable notice of Mr. Butler during the Illinois primary race between Senator Medill McCormick and Deneen. West was Deneen's manager.

The fact that Mr. West has made plain to Mr. Butler that he knows when to say and when not to talk, is said to have had a great effect and to have aided in his popularity with the incoming national chairman.

The election of Mr. West for the national secretaryship, while only tentative, has the strong approval of the White House, obviously a big mark in his favor. He formerly served as treasurer of the national committee.

Upham Pleads Illness.

The resignation of Mr. Upham was not a great surprise to the Republicans gathered here for the big convention, although it created a great deal of comment. Mr. Upham has served the G. O. P. well and long. His health has been impaired during the last four years, and his close friends have repeatedly heard him state he would soon have to turn the strenuous duties over to another man.

The official announcement of the decision came after the national tree had had a long conference with William M. Butler, manager of the Coolidge convention campaign. There was no indication of a successor.

Upham Pleads Illness.

It was reported among Republican leaders here tonight that Frank G. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, had decided he would accept the nomination if named for Vice President. No direct word was received from Mr. Lowden, who is in Virginia.

WIFE CAUSED DECISION.

Mrs. Fred W. Upham, wife of the treasurer of the Republican national committee, persuaded him to retire, it was learned here today.

Mr. Upham's health has not been good, yet he had planned to go through the campaign. But Mrs. Upham urged that he relinquish some of his burdens. He is the head of the Consumers' company, one of the large corporations of the country.

For twenty years Mr. Upham has been the financial genius of the Republican national conventions, either as chairman of the Chicago convention committee or as national treasurer, an office which he took in 1918.

43 PLEDGED FOR UPHAM

Forty-three members of the Illinois delegation to the Republican national convention are pledged to support Fred W. Upham's candidacy for the Illinois chairmanship. Upham backed his decision yesterday. This is twelve more than needed to elect. At least two additional delegates are counted on to vote for Upham, whom only opponent is Congressman Allen Moore of Monticello.

The first convention badges and tickets made their appearance in Chicago yesterday. Delegates will have gift badges and alternate silver. All others are bronze. The tickets bear the name of President Harding.

Most of the Illinois delegation will leave Chicago at 11 p. m. standard time, Sunday, on a special New York train. The tickets bear the name of President Harding.

30 BOYS, 8 GIRLS HELD IN PROBE OF VICE RING CHARGE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 4.—[Special]

—Investigation of a report that a vice ring has existed among a coterie of young girls has led to arrest within the last two days of thirty youths, of whom fifteen are high school students.

Serious charges have been placed against nine while the others have been held for alleged contributing to the negligence of fellow juveniles.

Eight girls are in custody of the county juvenile agent.

Officers have been unable to determine if a vice ring, eligibility to which was said to be moral wrong doing, really exists. The arrests include virtually the entire football squad of Central high school, some of whom are already serving sentences in the county jail. Others will appear in circuit court to answer the more serious charges.

Up and down Clark street, from the river to the "south of the avenue" and "north of the avenue" old timers and the younger generation, too, last night showed sympathetic concern and reminiscing upon the good old days, not so long ago, at that, when "Jimmy" Quinn was the boss of the old Twenty-first ward, and his hat shop at Clark and Erie streets was the center of politics in the region.

"Jimmy" Quinn is the last of a trio of Democratic politicians whose feuds kept the north side in a continuous state of embroilment for twenty years and more. "Jimmy" and his feud with the late Robert Emmett Burke kept things on the move in many a campaign, and the feud between "Jimmy" and the late John F. O'Malley was one of the hottest that ever blazed.

For years "Jimmy" and his vein of wit and humor, his epigrams and his barbed comments upon his enemies in politics were a joyous enrichment of Chicago politics—always good for a newspaper yarn on a dull day. When Carter H. Harrison was first made mayor, he made Quinn city seal. "Bobby" Burke of "O.K." fame was still inspector. A feed started and back in 1902 "Jimmy" one day unbuttoned his mouth at the city hall and gave vent to his feelings concerning "Bobby" in an interview that filled some two columns of THE TRIBUNE.

The "Twenty-first," of which "Jimmy" became boss, is the most cosmopolitan ballyhoo in Chicago, ranging from the river precincts with their cheap hotels to the Gold Coast.

Ran Honore Palmer.

Quinn added to his prestige by going to the silk stocking region for a candidate for alderman. He ran Honore Palmer, and put him in after a spectacular campaign which embraced the entertainment of the predict battles at afternoon teas in homes along the Lake Shore drive and a grand party at cheap hotels to the Gold Coast.

Mr. Dooley Says:

"Old Boreas nivis got into a well-regulated saloon. Women, children, an' fresh air were barred. Th' stov is red hot an' hissies like a serpent whin'ever a gentleman comes in an' splits on it."

By Finley Peter Dunne

is an article guaranteed to keep you grinning until it's painful to laugh any more. You'll find it in the magazine section of the Potter Palmer house.

During the Dunne administration

Quinn ran out of a political job, but not out of language. The new mayor of Chicago, Frank Murphy, and his Municipal Ownership League, of which Mr. O. Quinn has generally been credited with coining the phrase

"I'm not a politician," is a political party of which Quinn is arraigned Monday, at which time State's Attorney Crowe will demand that the trial be set for July 15, giving the defense what they consider ample time for preparation—more than thirty days.

Not even with the voting of indictments will the grand jury's work on this murder case be finished, it is said. Instead, it will hear every witness now known or discovered later, to get the testimony on record under oath and thereby prevent a changing of statements.

This, as well as Prosecutor Crowe's reluctance to have the confessions written up, were explained by him yesterday. He is afraid witnesses may be tampered with, that the confessions might be stolen or reach the hands of the defense attorneys, unusual precautions are being taken to guard against the $15,000,000 defense.

GRAND JURY HEARING

Strong evidence was adduced against the pair yesterday before the grand jury, which heard part of it the day before, and will continue hearing it today. Blood spots were found on the clothing each accused wore the night of the murder, according to a report by Commissioner Chamberlain W. D. McVay, who analyzes the prints.

Busticles were found with which the "freak murderers" searched out their victim and later used to get a long distance view of the train from which they expected Jacob Franks to throw them $10,000.

Prof. James Stoss told how he had frustrated their attempt to make John Levinson, son of a prominent lawyer, their victim. They were talking to him when he chanced upon the scene, whereupon they hastily drove away, he said.

The stationery store proprietor who sold the letter paper and envelope used in the now famous $10,000 ransom demand letter told his story to the grand jury, identifying his customer as Leopold.

The man who found the boy's body testified. Leopold's spectacles alongside that of the body likewise numerous other important witnesses.

Many more were waiting to testify at the adjournment of the second day of what is called the most complete presentation of evidence ever submitted to a grand jury.

May Bar Outside Meats.

Meanwhile Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman was considering the advisability and his right under the law to prohibit the pampered youths from having their meals outside the county jail. The under constant surveillance and the only fear of their obtaining poison is thought to be through food brought from the outside.

"If those boys are given the extreme penalty by the jury, or if they are aware there is a chance for them to stay with their own lives," Sheriff Hoffman said, "They are intelligent and it is unreasonable to assume they would arrange some quick and for themselves if they learn there is no hope for them, either from a social, spiritual, or moral standpoint.

"In view of the statements attributed to Leopold that he will die by his own hand rather than be hanged, I must take precautions."

Under the law, however, he must permit the prisoners to have their meals sent in, as the law presumes every person innocent until found guilty, and as the jail is merely a place of confinement for accused prisoners awaiting trial, he is not subject to the rigors of convict life.

So the boys were still getting their meals from Joe Stein's courthouse restaurant, while State's Attorney Crowe was taking steps to remove the legal presumption of innocence.

THE FIRST WITNESS

Thomas Menke, Roby, Ind., was the first witness to be examined before the grand jury by Mr. Crowe and Assistant State's Attorney Joseph P. Savage, Milton D. Smith, John Ballard, and Roy Fairbank.

"Calling your attention to May 22, about 9 a. m., where were you?" he was asked.

"I was going to get my watch," he answered. "I was walking along the west side of the ditch, and I saw the boy to the boys, about May 18, he thought.

Holton Strandberg, 322 East 48th street, testified he sold the stationery to the boys, about May 18, he thought.

He was shown parts of the automobile, blood stained, and he informed the jurors of his certainty that they were from car No. 17. He told of a rule of the company that a car renter who had to buy gasoline is reimbursed upon presentation of a receipt for it.

"Ballard said he had bought five gallons of gasoline," Mr. McBurney replied in response to a question. "I asked for the receipt, he said he didn't get any. I couldn't see how he ran out of gas when he only drove the car 118 miles. He said it didn't amount to anything and he didn't want the money."

Walter J. Jacobs, president of the company, and Margaret Fitzpatrick, its telephone operator, also informed the jury of Leopold's dealing with them under the name of Ballard.

BY TYRRELL KRUM.

When the long gray shadows slanted their way through the grated bars of the county jail last evening, then came to rest on the form of a well dressed boy lying on the upper bunk of cell No. 1. A dirty dog eared book was held in his firm white hands, and his lips were moving.

Stirring stories of love and adventure issued from the boy's lips as he read to his cellmate, who squatted on the floor against the door of the cell. The faces of four or five boys in adjacent cells on either side were pressed against the bars as they listened to the clear voice.

Darkness Stops Reading.

Nathan Leopold Jr., whiled away the hours of his third evening behind the bars where he and his friend, Robert Frank, had been confined for the murder of 14 year old Robert Frank. When the shadows fell and it became too dark to read, young Leopold folded up the book and talked in a quiet voice to his companion, Thomas Doherty, charged with the killing.

Across the cell room lay down one of his studies, a Loeb composition, a small oil painting, automobile "pal," and companion in murder. Young Loeb was doing his evening chores—washing his spoon and tin cup, his only eating utensils, and cleaning up for the night's rest.

Both of the boys finished their second day in jail in better spirits than they have shown since they started the country by confessing the planning and murder of young Frank for the sake of adventure and a thrill.

Calls for Breakfast.

They were out of bed at 6:30 in the morning, and in the aisle of the state of his cell for several moments and then called to the guard for breakfast. Loeb busied himself with making his bunk and then washed two handkerchiefs.

After that they both sat down and waited until breakfast.

Loepold bought a cup of coffee and a doughnut from the "walking store," but failed to find a place to sit. Loeb contented himself with a piece of coffee cake. At 8 o'clock Loeb asked Warden Wesley Westbrook for permission to go to the jail school. Loepold spent the morning reading the newspaper's stories of his crime, while his former companion labored with several youthful criminals in the "school room." At noon he and the other gatatoe and recovered his clothes lost in the evening of his entry into the institution.

Join in Jail Exercise.

At 1:30 the prisoners were turned into the "bulbels" for exercise. Loepold immediately engaged in a game of handball with several others, and his sharp commands to the players above the din. Loeb found enjoyment in a game in which each participant placed his hat on cap in his hands and then one of the players rolls a rubber ball into one of the hats.

The player in whose hat the ball settles makes a leap for it and throws it at one of the other players while they scamper for cover.

Loeb was busy jumping for his hat, while the others took delight in watching him perform. His skill imported, silk lined hat soon was crushed and torn by the feet of the players.

South Sues Each Other.

When the exercise time was over they returned to their cells. It was noticed that not once did Loeb and Leopold exchange as much as a glance. The break that came with the confessions appeared to have become permanent.

Leopold appeared more sociable with his cellmate than he had before. He shared his supper of fried chicken and mashed potatoes from Joe St. John's restaurant, and then asked for a book to read. Assistant State's Attorney Hans Thompson brought him Marie Corelli's "Romance of Two Worlds." He crawled up on his bunk and began to read.

When the hour of retirement came the two youthful murderers, to the tune of men and women's voices floating up from automobiles speeding past, turned over and went to sleep.

ADMIT TWELVE BURGLARIES.

William A. Dorgan of 6326 Greenwood avenue, who was accused of breaking into Oak Park since February, was arrested yesterday after a chase in which police fired several shots.

GEORGIA NEGROES WIN

Cleveland, O., June 4.—(By the Associated Press)—After a series of Republican party managers for a "cleaning up" the long standing fractional fight in Georgia and resulted today in the seating again of delegates headed by Henry Lincoln Johnson, the Negro national committeeman from that state, long a stormy petrel before the national conventions.

Just as most of the old-line party managers on the committee had done that Johnson and his delegates met to make place for those representing the faction formerly led by J. L. Phillips, which had been recognized by officials of the national committee as representing the regular organization in the state. A letter was produced, written by President Harding to C. Bascom Slemp, saying that in recognizing the Phillips faction a blunder had been made and suggesting that action be taken to alter the situation.

Johnson Wins, 22 to 14.

Charles D. Hiles, committeeman of New York, had practically forced the production of the letter. The committee voted, 22 to 14, to retire from the Johnson delegates. A substitute motion, offered by Joseph K. Keeling, committeeman from Indiana, to seat the contesting delegation was rejected by the same vote.

The Georgia contest, which occupied practically all of today's session, was the only intervening feature of the pre-convention period. The session was alternately noisy, bitter, pathetic, and amusing.

Johnson, as is his custom, had charge of the presentation of his own case, and for nearly an hour he paced back and forth in front of the committee members, making a strong appeal with appeals for consideration for the people of his race, and frequently was subjected to a running cross-fire of questions from committee men.

Arkansas Contest Delayed.

It had been decided to take up the contests alphabetically, but the test over the Arkansas delegation was passed temporally.

H. B. Smith of Little Rock.

The committee voted to seat William T. Gallaher and Thomas L. Jones, the latter a Negro, as delegates from the federal district.

Arkansas Contest Delayed.

It was announced here today that among those who will make speeches at the convention of President Coolidge will be Mrs. Florence Porter, of Pasadena, Cal., former Gov. Stickney of Vermont, and Dr. George E. Cannon of New Jersey.

PSYCHO EXPERTS BLAME PARENTS FOR PRECOCITY

Meeting in East Considers Franks Case.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 4.—The real responsibility for the tragic careers of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb of Chicago, millionaire self-confessed players of 14 year old Robert Franks, rests with their parents.

This was the consensus expressed here today by delegates to the eighteenth annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association.

Some, however, deplored the general downward tendency of the intellectual average in the country, urging drastic steps to combat it.

The delegates include many of the most eminent specialists in mental diseases in this country, and they freely predicted that the trial of the two youths would develop into the greatest medico-legal battle ever staged in this country.

What no set resolution was passed, it was generally urged by the physicians that each state appoint a permanent alienist board, composed of experts who could give a careful and impartial judgment as to the sanity of persons involved in legal proceedings. This judgment, it was pointed out, would be accepted as final and would obviate long drawn out trials and "trial by jury" in "petty" sanity decisions as in opposing alienists.

for the contestants, basing his argument largely on the reorganization of the state party machinery at Atlanta in July, 1921, at the request of President Harding and officials of the national committee.

Until that time, he contended, chaos had ruled in party councils in the state.

Denies Negro Ban.

Denying allegations by the Johnson faction that after the reorganization of the party Phillips, as state chairman, had undertaken to read the Negroes of Georgia out of the party, Anderson said he had "had no time

"to draw a decency line." In the party.

He added that Negroes had participated in the Atlanta convention and that Negroes had been elected delegates last April.

Anderson, in concluding, said that Phillips had been authorized to say that Phillips had withdrawn and that if the convention had not adjourned some one else would be chosen.

This announcement appeared to furnish Johnson the cue for his introductory remarks: "Where is the national committee you elected at Atlanta?" he shouted. "Can you answer in decency? I will tell you where he is. He is on trial in the District of Columbia, stealing $2,000,000 of money from the government in this war profiteering."

Talked with Harding.

Dr. Leroy Burton, professor of clinical medicine at Johns Hopkins University, said before the convention: "If the public could be accurately informed of the prevalence of abnormal thought, feeling, and behavior in the United States, such indifference as now exists to the problem of mental disease would become incomprehensible."

"It is a matter for the gravest consideration that through ill-regulated immigration on the one hand, and through the relatively insufficient fertility of the mentally superior stocks on the other, the general level of intelligence and character in the United States is bound to fail unless we take the necessary steps to prevent it."

By a curious coincidence, interest in and discussion of the Chicago case increased today from the attitude of the McAdoo cohorts, who indicated they would not accede to the proposals that this rule be abrogated by the convention.

It is a matter for the gravest consideration that through ill-regulated immigration on the one hand, and through the relatively insufficient fertility of the mentally superior stocks on the other, the general level of intelligence and character in the United States is bound to fail unless we take the necessary steps to prevent it."

Strong indications were apparent in Democratic circles here that Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana probably would be selected as permanent chairman of the convention.

Johnson denied in response to an inquiry from the contestants that he had ever stated at a district convention in Georgia that he was glad President Harding was dead.

The Georgia controversy came up again, and the committee had set aside a time for the two delegates at large from the District of Columbia in the morning.

BURTON SPEECH TO BE AS CITIZEN, NOT POLITICIAN

Coolidge's Nomination to Be a Precedent.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
Washington, D. C., June 4.—[Special.]—The gist of the speech in which Calvin Coolidge will be placed in nomination for the presidency next Thursday at Cleveland by Marion Leroy Burton, president of the University of Michigan will be—

"Here is a man I have known for fifteen years and this is why I think it is that he is the best man for the presidency of the United States."

Then will come a personal sketch and presentation of the character of Coolidge as man and as public official by the man who, as president of Smith college at Northampton, Mass., had many a long confab with Mayor Calvin Coolidge on town and college affairs.

Those were intimate confabs, for, as Marion Leroy Burton put it today, "Smith college is the principal industry of Northampton."

The confabs extended over a period of eight years, for even when Coolidge was not mayor he was always first citizen of Northampton.

Faith but Party Divides.

Since then, many, both men have gone up, up, up—Coolidge from the mayoralty of a New England town of 20,000 to the President of the United States, and Burton from the president of the University of Minnesota and now the presidency of the University of Michigan, where he has $12,000,000 worth of building operations under way.

But in the seven years that have passed since Burton left Northampton, he and Coolidge have kept in friendly touch—"not constant touch," said Burton today, "but always friendly touch."

They now thoroughly respect one another. Coolidge trusts Burton as a man combining sense with vision. Burton's feelings toward the President, he expressed in these words today, "One thing I will say: I have an unequalled high regard for the man."

"Not a Reactionary."

That is how it comes to pass that even as Warren Harding's name was placed in nomination by a former college professor, Frank Bartlett, Willis, now senior senator of Ohio, Calvin Coolidge's will be placed in nomination by a former college professor, for long before Burton went in for university presidencies he was a professor at Yale, and later a clergyman.

Burton's will not be a reactionary speech.

"Anybody," he said, "who has looked into my writings—especially my book called 'Our Intellectual Attitude in an Age of Criticism,'—knows where I stand. It is a world that is inevitably changing and growing, the important thing is that it is not losing a thing is old or new, but whether it is true."

"The first task of a human being is to think. When a man has got the facts, let him act accordingly."

Not to be a Partisan Speech.

"Hence, this attempt to strictly classify public men as progressive or reactionary is often futile. That is why I don't think it is worth while to let you force me into a statement as to whether the nominating speech will be progressive or reactionary. Any one who knows me knows that my thought is toward the future."

I asked Dr. Burton whether the speech would be short or long.

"Long enough," he replied, adding, "My speeches are like an accordion."

as long or as short as the note of the occasion demands."

He is manifestly nervous about the speech, and said: "I have spent my life making speeches, but I have never had one challenge me as this one does. It is not a thing to be ground out to order. I want to make a speech as a partisan. I have no political views. My function at Cleveland has nothing to do with politics and policies. My duty is to present the name of Calvin Coolidge. I hope to have the speech finished by Sunday night, but everything I shall say up there may not be what I send out to the press associations. But I shall, nevertheless, remain consistent."

His Selection a Surprise.

Dr. Burton had no intimation that he was to be chosen to make the speech until last Thursday night. Having conference with the university's regents, Dr. Burton leaped into his automobile and made for the woods of central Michigan, northwest of Freeland. Reaching the town of Clare, in Clare county, he was halted at nightfall with the words, "The White House wants you on the telephone."

At the Washington end of the wire was old Mr. Stearns, Calvin Coolidge's nearest friend, and he delivered the Cleveland invitation from Marion Burton's old Northampton friend of the mayoralty days.

Burton will make the convention speech in an effort to impress him. He is a big man with a big frame and a big voice and a big brain. It won't be a roar of blab-blah, like Prof. Willis: "Boys and girls, let's nominate Harding!"

"long haired men and short haired women" and applying it to the majorities of the nation. In 1901, "Jimmy" used to sit in the department headquarters and entertain "Tom" Carey, "Ed" Lahiff and others with discourses upon the free lunch appetite of the I. M. O. experts. He pictures them all as carrying forks in their pockets, with strings attached, whereby they might spear the festive redhots and snatch it to safety over the shoulders of others lined up before the free lunch counters.

"My greatest pride is that I was the lad who put Charles M. Walker, Lockwood Honors, and E. O. Brown on the bench. How did I do it? Why, I went into the caucus at the Grand Central Hotel and I told the men I said to Frank Solon—God rest his soul—'Got a candidate, Frank?' 'No,' says Frank. 'Nominate Lockwood Honors.'

"He doesn't live in my ward," says Frank. "What's the difference?" says I. "He's a crackerjack, a fine gentlemen, and a great lawyer."

"Then I got a west side committee-man, named Charles M. Walker. After myself named Charles M. Walker. After younger than his age.

"How did I bust into politics?" said Jimmy, tilting his derby a trifle more cockily and throwing out his chest as he paced up and down. "I'll tell you. I was born in the depths of a old soap box primaries. I was a well dressed, quiet spoken chap and they weren't going to let me vote. I says

"I have made the convention the platform in its platform when the movement to bring it about was under way, and no party will dare mention it now, when the movement to bring about its repeal is under way. Public opinion will compel action, irrespective of political party."

A firm and practical step would be to start a referendum movement in several states on the question whether the eighteenth amendment should not be repealed and be replaced by a better one.

NO! DAUGHERTY REPLIES TO BID THAT HE TESTIFY

Thrills Over; Committee
Plans Partial Report.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Washington, D. C., June 4.—(Special)—Harry M. Daugherty, ousted attorney general, today defied the senatorial committee which has been investigating him for months and flatly declined to appear as a witness next Friday.

Affairs of the committee came to a crisis this morning with this formal rebuff. Mr. Daugherty not only refused to testify at this time but he charged the committee with all kinds of unfairness. Senator Smith of Brookhart, who remains untouched by history, as he was by his first reports of defeat, in his own state primary, repiled in kind to Mr. Daugherty's accusations, and the future course of the investigation will rest on the Supreme court decision as to the committee's powers. A partial report may be made this week, and then a long recess taken. Mr. Brookhart will undoubtedly himself in an address to the Senate tomorrow.

Daugherty's Hasty Read.

Senators Brookhart, Moses, and Ashurst were the only members present to hear Attorney Paul Howland deliver Mr. Daugherty's reply. A formal letter was read in which Mr. Daugherty expressed resentment and surprise that his former assistants had not been called as witnesses to explain the case in which testimony was given by his former staff, as he said, had been changed entirely by the opinion of Judge Cochran in the E. K. Daugherty contempt case and he now considered it unnecessary for him to appear by counsel or in person.

"The fact that your committee has not up to the present time called a single witness suggested by me, and has not even called me as a witness, is a fact which I consider important," he said, "and I have been advised by my selected sources and generally from persons so situated that under ordinary circumstances very little credence would be given to their testimony, has from the beginning caused me to feel that there was a feeling of antagonism entertained toward me by certain of your committee. Instead of presenting the facts in an impartial manner, I have made a desperate attempt to blacken my reputation and injure my standing in the country by statements of unreliable witnesses which would not be admitted in any court of justice," says the Daugherty letter.

Never Took a Dime, He Says.

"At this point I take occasion to contradict and deny any inference, surmise or suspicion that I profited in any illegal, immoral or unethical way directly or indirectly, by reason of any activities of political officials or friends at any time; or that my conduct, either official or personal, was directly or indirectly influenced at any time, in any way, by venal and corrupt motives."

"No witness has appeared before your committee who has by any means, directly, substantially, or otherwise, admitted the existence of any such circumstance, except by way of the grave, and the silence of the tomb has forever rendered the direct denial of these slanders impossible."

Chairman Brookhart replied at once, stating that he spoke only for himself, and that he would ask the committee to make a partial report and adjourn.

Blame for Jess Smith.

"Now I was a girl, my rich mother took me on a world search for the supreme beauty help. She helps made me famous. Since I have kept in touch with my new discovery, I have made many trips to France. So what I am and what I am are due to her help."

"My women have convinced me I should share these helps with others. Millions of girls and women tell me what it did. Now beauty experts the world over are advising this formula. No other man which has discovered what this cleanser does. My Facial Youth contains no oil, no vegetable fat. It cannot be assimilated with the skin. It simply cleans to the depths, the pores. All the grime, dead skin, the clogging matter come out with it. It is the first beauty product that leaves a utterly clear skin. But I never knew what a clean skin meant until I found the Facial Youth. Now Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth is supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. The cost is 50¢. I shall be glad to send you a free sample. Just mail me this card. My Beauty Book will come with it."

"Unspeakeable Mind."

"The refusal to let us see those bank records is exceedingly presumptuous against innocence in these matters. It shows an attempt to attack the committee externally; an attempt even to discredit the committee up with soviet attorney general of the United States, shown to be of mind on the part of Harry M. Daugherty that is unspeakable to any honest man."

MR. HOWLAND.—In view of the situation Senator Chamberlain and myself will be excused?

THE CHAIRMAN.—Yes, we will excuse.

There is some talk among Senator Brookhart's associates of asking an official investigation of the source of the money that was used in Iowa against Senator Brookhart, as they suspect that Daugherty's friends had something to do with the effort to defraud him.

Afraid to Testify: Wheeler.

St. Louis, Mo., June 4.—Former Attorney General George W. Wheeler "did not care to lay himself open to a rigorous examination." Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.), who was in St. Louis today, asserted in commenting on Daugherty's refusal to testify.

"It's no surprise to me," Wheeler said. "He could not explain to the committee on the country. Nor does he dare to explain to the country his opinion or the names of various people from whom he has drawn money, either as attorney or otherwise, since he became attorney general, or submit to the country a list of his holdings."

SENATOR MOSES.—Mr. Chairman, to this opinion of the court rendered by the chairman, I want to express my dissent.

Bristow, Okla., June 4.—The Community State bank here was robbed by two unmasked bandits today. The robbers held up the cashiers and took $2,000 and $3,000, and escaped in a motor car.

The court inferentially holds that Congress can spend $4,000,000,000 a year, but it must not inquire or examine as to where a penny of the $4,000,000,000 goes.

JUNIOR HIGHS AGAIN FACING LABOR ATTACK

Trustees Deny Creation of Social Classes.

Leading the fight of organized labor against the junior high schools, already approved by the Illinois Federation of Labor, is M. Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and yesterday they will encourage the exceptional student to continue his or her education, but guide the less able mentally into tasks viewed as menial.

For this reason, Olander and his co-objects in the junior high schools will fail to succeed.

Mr. Olander, contending that the Rochester, N. Y., report on the junior high schools gives their true character, charges that report with the assertion that groups of inferior and of superior ability are brought into prominence; the superior group carries a heavy schedule of attendants, and is encouraged to go on to the higher schools, while the other group is advised to take work in the industrial and household courses.

Olander's Point of Attack.

"The really sinistrous element in this arrangement is that children are led to believe that only persons of inferior intelligence are inferior," Mr. Olander said. "This is a discrimination of 'inferiority' is by this means directed against all persons as producers or workers in industry. That purpose not only is un-American, it is anti-American."

Mr. Olander declared it was impossible for people to know how long they would keep their children in school or what occupation they wanted them to follow, as many persons were struggling along from year to year to give their children an education and would do so long as the means held out.

The trustees said they would ask what a child of 12 should do and how long he would stay in school was an effort to have that child continue through life in the status in which his father lived.

School Trustees Deny It.

Trustee Hart Hanson pointed out to Mr. Olander that the commission reported on junior high schools after visiting Rochester, decided that what was done there was exactly what Chicago did not want to do.

A general education is just as possible for people to know how long they would keep their children in school or what occupation they wanted them to follow, as many persons were struggling along from year to year to give their children an education and would do so long as the means held out.

The trustees said they would ask what a child of 12 should do and how long he would stay in school was an effort to have that child continue through life in the status in which his father lived.

COOLIDGE NAMES U. S. OIL LAWYER IN CALIFORNIA

Washington, D. C., June 4.—William C. Morrow of Tacoma, Wash., was nominated by President Coolidge today to act as special government counsel in proceedings to assert and establish government title to sections 16 and 38 of naval oil reserve No. 1 located in California.

Samuel Knight of San Francisco originally was selected for the place but the nomination of the San Francisco man was rejected by the Senate on the ground that he had acted as counsel for the Equitable Trust company, in which the Rockefellers are large stockholders. Section 36 of the California oil reserve is operated by the Standard Oil Co. of California.

The arrests followed the return of M. Zinovief, commissar of the Petrograd district and also president of the Third Internationale, from the thirteenth congress of the Communist party in Moscow. M. Zinovief ordered the tanks set for some of his men to blow up the czar's Winter palace and the favorite scene of Red orgies.

The diners noticed that ordinary porcelain was used instead of the monogrammed service that once graced the czar's table. Investigation proved that M. Nicholoff and his staff had sold the czar's dishes to a group of spectators, who smuggled them to Berlin.

THREE JAPANESE PROTEST U.S. BAN BY ENDING LIVES

BY RODERICK MATHESON.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

TOKIO, June 4.—There have been three suicides of Japanese in the last two days in protest against the passage of American legislation excluding Japanese immigrants from the United States. Two threw themselves from trains, one at Hamamatsu and the other at Choshi. Both were youths.

The suicide at Hamamatsu was a man of 18. He left a note addressed to the "Japanese people" in which he said, "There should be no buying of American goods."

The victim at Choshi was an unidentified boy of about 20, who was dressed like a student. He left a note saying: "I sacrificed myself for the sake of the nation. I hope to consider the thoughts of the people at this hour on the disturbance due to American exclusion. I hope that my compatriots will appreciate the reason why I die."

Letter to Woods.

Another Japanese ended his life in a suburb of Tokio, near the Toyama Military school. The man was about 23 years old. Before hanging himself he left a letter in a pocket of his cloak, which was of foreign make, to Amakusa Woods. The letter said: "I die glad knowing you are doing your utmost to bring a satisfactory end to American hatred towards Japan. The spirit of Japan is like the waves beating toward the shore and cannot be stopped. Will you have sympathy for us?"

The news of the suicides are prominently displayed by the press, which is likely to lead to an epidemic of them.

Such suicide have a profound effect on the Japanese, who take them to heart seriously.

Yesterday members of a new association — called the Rinjinsha — toured Tokio by automobile, distributing leaflets urging an American boycott and lief supplies not used. Geisha girls in Osaka have adopted a resolution to abstain from buying American toilet articles. The movement to boycott American wares is spreading in many directions daily.

New Fuel from U.S.

Considerable fuel has been added to the anti-American flames today by the publication here of a letter from Manager Okada, who is now in America, to one of his English-speaking friends.

Mr. Okada says the Japanese were treated bitterly by the fans of the University of California.

The newspaper Asahi, commenting on this, says, "One cannot criticize too severely the savagery of the students of the University of California, who always have been pro-American, and their spirit is still full of it. If this is the spirit they have, then the spirit of sportsmanship is being lost in the garden of liberty."

Respects Canada Pledge.

An emphatic and indignant denial of the statement in the Canadian comment that Japan is not living up to the terms of the gentlemen's agreement by respecting migration to Canada was made by Sukeyuki Hakamatsu, head of the emigration bureau in the foreign office.

"Japan is strictly observing the spirit of the gentlemen's agreement, Canada's stimulating immigration to the Dominion as 150 agricultural servants as residents annually," Mr. Hakamatsu said. "It is true that 448 entered last year, but 284 were not immigrants under the terms of the agreement, but the wives and children of the Japanese residents of Canada, the agreement permits an entry of 150 immigrants. The foreign office is just in receipt of a copy of a message from Ottawa to Vancouver, instructing the officials there to admit the wives and children who have no passports providing they prove their status.

"There never was any question of Japanese failing to observe the gentlemen's agreement, until now, nor ever any misunderstanding. They regard exceedingly the anti-Japanese propagandists in Canada, who are adopting the policy of the American anti-Japanese, by resorting to twisting facts while the truth is easily verifiable."

Mr. Hakamatsu explains that there is no agreement with Canada parallel to the American agreement which is a written document. The Canadian agreement is merely Japan's word not to send more than 150 Japanese yearly. He declined to comment on the Ottawa report that the question question may be taken up, as this is not official information. It is not likely that Japan will take any step until such an unexpected measure is actually proposed.

Men—

Silk socks that give 3 to 4 times more wear!

New way to knit toes—perfected by Holeproof does it. 500 tests made to prove this

On sale beginning today. Prices remain 75c and $1.00

YOUR bill for silk hosiery this summer will be far less than ever before. Because each dollar you spend will buy three to four times as much wear.

You get the same handsome Holeproof silk hosiery you've always admired. The same good style and snug, neat fit.

The same price per pair.

But now we have given each pair extra strength at the most important wear-point. Cunning reinforcement which you can scarcely see or feel.

Today we offer you this remarkably improved silk hosiery, men. It outwears anything you've ever had, three or four to one! It's now on sale at all leading men's furnishing shops.

How socks have worn out

For more than 10 years we've been leaders in producing fine hosiery. Constantly improving appearance—increasing durability.

We found by actual investigation that 95 per cent of all men's socks wear out first at the tip—where they cover the toe. So for years we have studied and experimented to find a way of reinforcing socks right at the tip.

Now we've succeeded in putting tremendous extra strength at this point—without making it bulky or uncomfortable wear.

And without increasing prices!

You can't see or feel it
This strength does not in any way detract from the handsomé appearance of your hosiery. So cleverly is the reinforcing done that you can hardly detect it. You can't feel it at all, when the sock is on your foot.

Special needles automatically insert a complete extra thickness of very fine but very strong thread just at the tip—

the little spot that comes into contact with the toes—particularly the nail of the large toe. Only closest inspection will show you where this extra strength is put in.

We call it the Holeproof Exx toe. A name you can easily remember.

No more mending

Since perfecting this process, we have made more than 700 tests to determine how much it actually adds to the life of your hosiery. Many of these tests were made in actual wear of the socks—by men who walked a great deal.
More were made by a machine which rubs the fabric briskly with a steel file.

These tests proved beyond all question that Holeproof silk hosiery with the new Holeproof Exx toe will wear 3 to 4 times longer than ordinary socks of anywhere near the same quality.

No more throwing away good socks because the toes have worn through—or because the mended places hurt your feet. No more mending—for your wives and mothers.

Ready for today

The Holeproof Exx toe is ready for you today—in a handsome style of Holeproof silk hosiery for men. Style 420-Exx at 75c a pair, and style 920-Exx at $1.00. Remember these numbers and ask for the style you want.

Holeproof hosiery is favored by all well-dressed men because it has style; because it fits snugly, neatly at the ankle; because colors don't fade. Now the Holeproof Exx toe gives you 3 to 4 times more wear.

Get a pair today—or in the future—at leading men's furnishing shops. Ask for Holeproof with the new

MONDELL AS A HORSESHOE.

Frank W. Mondell, formerly in the house of representatives from Wyoming, is the choice of the leaders in the Republican national organization as permanent chairman at Cleveland next week. Mondell is a known reactionary. In the progressive sections of the west he is generally regarded as a hard boiled Republican party consul, intimately associated with the elements which were with Cannon, against Roosevelt and with Taft, and which made the Republican party unhappy in Washington this winter.

It is surmised that he is favored because the easterners think the radical west will be pleased to see him permanent chairman. The theory rests on the fact that Mondell is director of the War Finance corporation, and about the only means of agricultural relief used by the administration were through this corporation.

Mondell went west to find out why the wheat farmers were in trouble and the administration adopted the suggestion that the grain growers be helped by money, advanced through the corporation. The ingenuous east seems to think that because the only measures taken in response to the agricultural demands were through this body, Mondell has become the fair haired boy of all the troubled Republicans of the prairies, plains, and industrial cities of the west.

The farmers of the west are to know that the Republicans of the east are for them because Mondell makes a speech and holds the gavel at Cleveland. The west knows Mondell. A Wyoming constituency sent him to Washington, but he represented the east and not the west. To progressive westerners Republicans he is representative of everything that makes them restive in their party and occasionally inclined to bolt from it.

He is offered them as a sign that the industrial leaders of the east are really liberal minded national leaders embracing all the progressive sentiment of the country in their sympathies. The east studies the west in a curious fashion.

The eastern leaders in the Republican organization seem determined to go into the race with all the hobbies they can put on themselves. The party has the advantage of the superiority of its economic ideas over the Democratic national party, in our opinion that is undoubtedly. It was fortunate in coming out of oil in position to dislodge the elements of the organization involved in that. President Coolidge was as clear of responsibility as if he had been farming in the Vermont hills. The apparent thing to do was to press that advantage to the utmost and shrewd political managers would have given every evidence of an intent to clean house.

Instead of doing so they create the impression in the west that they will make just as few concessions to general opinion out here as they can and probably none at all. They may throw away all their good luck.

They ought to know that there is resentment in the west against the top heavy representation in convention from the feudalized Republican party in the south, where convoluted Negroes are much better represented than voters in solid Republican states. A feeble start was made to remedy this injustice, but the national convention undid its own work and actually boosted the southern representation.

These votes were not needed even to pull a political trick in the convention. This is one nomination in which the patronage vote virtually could be thrown away, but the illustration of indurated political scheming is given the restive western Republicans.

Mondell is not needed to run a steam roller in Cleveland. The nomination is already made. No rough stuff is required. There is the complete opportunity for at least the appearance of concession to every principle of fair play. It seems as if the force of habit is too strong for some of the eastern Republicans.

We do not count the Democrats out yet. The eastern Republicans may. The Democrats may count themselves in New York. If political wisdom is found in New York and little of it in Cleveland there will be a real fight all over the west and the Republicans will need all their luck.

We wish the eastern Republicans would be admonished. The radicals of the west is best opposed by convincing its liberalism that there is something else than despair for it in the policies of the dominant group of the Republican management which is throwing its horseheads at its own head.

WHY CHICAGO GOES DEMOCRATIC.

Politicians are speculating on the political complexion of Chicago. Is the city now normally Democratic? At the election of June 2 Mr. Shannon, the Democratic candidate for justice of the Supreme court, ran ahead of Mr. De Young, the Republican, who won the vote cast outside of the city.

The vote was light, but the fact that Gov. Small had blocked Republican nominations for the Circuit and Superior vacancies had, we think, more bearing upon the general result in the city. It was undoubtedly resented by many Republicans who either did not trouble to vote on the single Republican candidate or voted for Mr. Shannon as a rebuke to the attempt to play factional politics with the judiciary. With a full ticket you senated, Republican voters would have been more disposed to take an interest in the election.

So long as the special affairs of Chicago are being invaded and exploited by a downstate politician allied with a discredited local faction, an alliance interested not in the good government of the city, but in spoils, Republican voters are going to show little enthusiasm for local Republican fortunes and the city is pretty likely to give Democratic majorities. But such majorities are and will be signs of Republican protest rather than evidence of the normal political character of the city electorate.

WHITES IN THE PACIFIC.

Discussion in the Canadian parliament reveals the concern of the dominion over Japanese exclusion. It is increased by the finality of action in the United States and by the intimation from Japan that in view of the exclusion provision the Japanese government will no longer exercise any restraint over Japanese laborers.

The Canadians say that the gentlemen's agreement between Canada and Japan is not working well and there is pressure in parliament for such an exclusion act as the American.

The interests of Canada, Australia and the United States in this respect are identical. The danger in Australia is greatest. The white group in the Pacific have common cause not in advancing into new lands in Asia but in protecting white lands from Asiatic pressure.

This cause can become the predominant interest in the three countries and in it they have a reason for adherence which might become much more important to Canada and Australia than it could be to the United States. The importance to the British dominions must draw in Great Britain unless that country refused to join the dominions in an issue which they know is one of existence.

It is directly against Australian interest that the United States give up the Philippines. In these islands America is a buffer. Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske has written a letter to Secretary Wilbur of the navy department pointing out that the American people are much deceived in thinking that the naval ratio is 5-5 between the United States and Japan. "The reverse of the truth," he says. Even if the American navy were superior in capital ships it is not in active personnel and it is inferior in reserve.

He says it is naval opinion that if the Japanese people become resentful enough to require or even warrant government action Japan would take the Philippines. "That Japan could take islands," he says, "we the members of the general board of the navy all agreed but that we could retake them no officer then was willing to declare."

Japanese in the Philippines would challenge a navy to operate 3,000 miles from the Hawaiian base. That is our danger and we have trusted to fate, exposing the hostages to retaliation. The compensation, which may be effective, lies in the fact that the group of white nations in the Pacific have identical interests and that they involve the other great navy of the world. That may strike off the 3,000 miles of operating radius and it may strike the protective balance.

The farmers of the west are to know that the Republicans of the east are for them because Mondell makes a speech and holds the gavel at Cleveland. The west knows Mondell. A Wyoming constituency sent him to Washington, but he represented the east and not the west. To progressive westerners Republicans he is representative of everything that makes them restive in their party and occasionally inclined to bolt from it.

It was fortunate in coming out of oil in position to dislodge the elements of the organization involved in that. President Coolidge was as clear of responsibility as if he had been farming in the Vermont hills. The apparent thing to do was to press that advantage to the utmost and shrewd political managers would have given every evidence of an intent to clean house.

Instead of doing so they create the impression in the west that they will make just as few concessions to general opinion out here as they can and probably none at all. They may throw away all their good luck.

They ought to know that there is resentment in the west against the top heavy representation in convention from the feudalized Republican party in the south, where convoluted Negroes are much better represented than voters in solid Republican states. A feeble start was made to remedy this injustice, but the national convention undid its own work and actually boosted the southern representation.

These votes were not needed even to pull a political trick in the convention. This is one nomination in which the patronage vote virtually could be thrown away, but the illustration of indurated political scheming is given the restive western Republicans.

Mondell is not needed to run a steam roller in Cleveland. The nomination is already made. No rough stuff is required. There is the complete opportunity for at least the appearance of concession to every principle of fair play. It seems as if the force of habit is too strong for some of the eastern Republicans.

We do not count the Democrats out yet. The eastern Republicans may. The Democrats may count themselves in New York. If political wisdom is found in New York and little of it in Cleveland there will be a real fight all over the west and the Republicans will need all their luck.

We wish the eastern Republicans would be admonished. The radicals of the west is best opposed by convincing its liberalism that there is something else than despair for it in the policies of the dominant group of the Republican management which is throwing its horseheads at its own head.

WHY CHICAGO GOES DEMOCRATIC.

Politicians are speculating on the political complexion of Chicago. Is the city now normally Democratic? At the election of June 2 Mr. Shannon, the Democratic candidate for justice of the Supreme court, ran ahead of Mr. De Young, the Republican, who won the vote cast outside of the city.

The vote was light, but the fact that Gov. Small had blocked Republican nominations for the Circuit and Superior vacancies had, we think, more bearing upon the general result in the city. It was undoubtedly resented by many Republicans who either did not trouble to vote on the single Republican candidate or voted for Mr. Shannon as a rebuke to the attempt to play factional politics with the judiciary. STERILIZE MILK BOTTLES.

ALL milk bottles should be sterilized as well as cleaned before being used. To produce clean milk bottles and then to pasteurize it may not be possible unless the product is sterilized. Sterilization before use is probably carried out, it does not matter whether the last previous use of the bottle was in a home where there was a case of smallpox or the bottle had doubled as a container for home brew.

The Chicago health department investigated the milk bottle question. It had the usual reaction to the question as to the use and appropriation and misuse of milk bottles. They assumed that the milk bottle should always be cleaned before being reused, and that it was. Cleaning in the sense that the visible dirt was removed was universal in commercial establishments.

The question next arose: Was it necessary to wash a milk bottle with a brush in a hot solution of a cleaning compound? The answer was—no. Some form of sterilization was necessary.

Many bacterial tests showed that sterilization by washing in chlorine water is the cheapest and best method.

It is necessary to wash the bottle with a brush in a hot solution of a cleaning compound. The answer was—no. Some form of sterilization was necessary.

PEGGY EX-JOYCE TELLS WHY SHE TOOK THE COUNT

A Clean, Fine Personality Won Her, She Says.

New York, June 4.—[Special.] Count and Countess Costa Morner, in an amiable mood, sat tonight in the living room of their suite at the Hotel Ambassador. Peggy Joyce, to use her more familiar name, has been upset and nervous. An army of reporters and photographers had besieged her apartment all day following announcement of her marriage to the count, at Atlantic City on Monday.

But tonight, refreshed and vivacious, she hoped nobody would think her "weak" for not seeing them, and told about the love affair and marriage that started the world.

"When all this is wired overseas," said the count, in confirmation of the latest idea, "it will stir things up a little, won't it?"

Once Twice Married.

"Some of the papers said I had been married five times," said Peggy. "What they say such things! I have been married only twice before. My previous husbands were Sherburn Hopkins of Washington, D. C., and Stanley Jones of Chicago, when I was 15. I did marry Everett Archer. But that marriage was annulled."

Then she added, with a chuckle, "Ready, I wonder why I married them?"

"This is really my third marriage, strictly considered," she went on. "Some of the papers said the count was 24 years old and that I was his senior. That is not so. Both of us were born in 1897."

"Yes," put in the count, "I was born the sixth of February and you were born the twenty-sixth of May, so that makes me nearly three months older."

Why She Chose Him.

The countess was asked what had attracted her in the count and made him want to marry him.

"I think he's just wonderful," she said. "I admire him for his manhood, for his clean, fine personality. He is sincere and level headed. That's good, you know, because I'm executable and go off the handle. I'm excited and he will go on loving me, because he is the kind of man who thinks it over before he decides and then stays put."

Birds singing and talking, tweet, tweet; tweet; caged circling high in the air; a wren still higher, shouting, "I'm a king, I'm a king." Thus Old King Stomach banishes in an evening of music and romance.

And as if inspired by a biton in the hands of Apollo himself, the Drake concert ensemble and the Blackstone quintet and concluding with Jack Nelson's "May You Smile in Your Dreams," the program will be made up of requested favorites.

Starting with the Drake ensemble, certain songs or dance selection, listen in on W-G-N tonight and it is quite possible you will hear it. Of course, there will not be enough time to comply with all of the requests received in the last few days but the station staff and the artists who will be at the studio this evening will give as many of them as can be had into the time the station has.

SHANGHAI, June 4.—The continent of Asia welcomed two American round-the-world planes here today with the arrival of Lieuts. Eric H. Nelson and Lowell Smith, and Capt. Ernest A. M. O'Leary and Lieut. John Harding. The aviators enjoyed the weather experienced since they left Santa Monica, Cal.

Although disappointed that their leader, Lieut. Lowell Smith, was unable to start, Lieut. Nelson stated to THE TRIBUNE this afternoon that the trip had been a success in every respect of the entire journey. The weather was good weather the entire distance of 800 miles, while a chain of American destroyers was stretched entirely across the China sea at intervals of fifty miles.

Smith Hope Off Today.

Lieut. Smith was unable to start from Kamakura because of engine trouble. The Lieutenant and his companion spent the entire day making repairs and this afternoon a wireless message was received from a destroyer at Nagasaki stating that he intends to start tomorrow morning, June 5, at 8:30 for Shanghai. The American destroyer patrol will remain on duty to give aid in case of trouble.

Shanghai, fully realizing the historical significance of the first flight across the Pacific Ocean, shut up shop today and went down the river six miles to the landing grounds, house boats, sampans, launches, tenders and junks. The river banks were lined with crowds for miles on both sides, the Chinese government in cooperation with the Shanghai municipal authorities and the river police patrolled the landing courses for a distance of two miles. The entire traffic of the port was held up for more than two hours awaiting the arrival of the Americans.

Finally the planes appeared, their mere specks as they were sighted about twenty miles distant over the mouth of the Yang-tze river. The followed the course of the river up to the landing grounds in front of the offices of the Standard Oil Company.

After circling over the course the planes made perfect landings, one coming to a halt in front of the Standard Oil Company.

Given Grand Welcome.

Immediately after landing, Lieuts. Lowell and Nelson were taken to a launch occupied by Capt. Wissler, agent of the shipping board; Consul General Cunningham, and an American welcome party. They were then given a luncheon at which an address of welcome was given by Stirling Possession, mayor of the city.

O'Leary Passes U. S. Flyers.

SHANGHAI, June 4.—Capt. Pelletier d'Oisy, French airmail pilot, the American flyers may be said to have passed in the air today on their respective long distance flights, although their courses lay many hundreds of miles apart. Capt. d'Oisy, winging eastward, flew from Pyongyang, Korea, to Zalko, Corea, landing at the latter place at 8:20 a. m.

About the time the French flyer was crossing the twentieth and twenty-sixth meridians on his eastward course the American aviators crossed the meridian while flying westward over the East China sea, 750 miles farther south. Capt. d'Oisy is flying to Tokio, Corea, landing at the latter place at 11 a. m.

After circling over the course the planes made perfect landings, one coming to a halt in front of the Standard Oil Company.

Given Grand Welcome.

Immediately after landing, Lieuts. Lowell and Nelson were taken to a launch occupied by Capt. Wissler, agent of the shipping board; Consul General Cunningham, and an American welcome party. They were then given a luncheon at which an address of welcome was given by Stirling Possession, mayor of the city.

O'Leary Passes U. S. Flyers.

SHANGHAI, June 4.—Capt. Pelletier d'Oisy, French airmail pilot, the American flyers may be said to have passed in the air today on their respective long distance flights, although their courses lay many hundreds of miles apart. Capt. d'Oisy, winging eastward, flew from Pyongyang, Korea, to Zalko, Corea, landing at the latter place at 8:20 a. m.

About the time the French flyer was crossing the twentieth and twenty-sixth meridians on his eastward course the American aviators crossed the meridian while flying westward over the East China sea, 750 miles farther south. Capt. d'Oisy is flying to Tokio, Corea, landing at the latter place at 11 a. m.

SHANGHAI, June 4.—The continent of Asia welcomed two American round-the-world planes here today with the arrival of Lieuts. Eric H. Nelson and Lowell Smith, and Capt. Ernest A. M. O'Leary and Lieut. John Harding. The aviators enjoyed the weather experienced since they left Santa Monica, Cal.

Although disappointed that their leader, Lieut. Lowell Smith, was unable to start, Lieut. Nelson stated to THE TRIBUNE this afternoon that the trip had been a success in every respect of the entire journey. The weather was good weather the entire distance of 800 miles, while a chain of American destroyers was stretched entirely across the China sea at intervals of fifty miles.

Smith Hope Off Today.

Lieut. Smith was unable to start from Kamakura because of engine trouble. The Lieutenant and his companion spent the entire day making repairs and this afternoon a wireless message was received from a destroyer at Nagasaki stating that he intends to start tomorrow morning, June 5, at 8:30 for Shanghai. The American destroyer patrol will remain on duty to give aid in case of trouble.

STATE LAUNCHES TRIAL OF BELVA FOR LAW KILLING

Dancer Faces Jury in Fashion's Latest.

Belva Gaertner, the lady who was "so drunk she doesn't remember," registered virtuous calm as the state opened its case yesterday in an attempt to prove her guilty of murder.

Her sultry eyes never lost their dreaminess as policemen described the dead body slumped over the wheel of her Nash sedan, the man who lay across the round, the blood that dripped in pools, and how revolver and "fifths" of gin lying on the floor.

Her sensuous mouth kept its soft curves as they told of finding her in her apartment—4809 Forrestville avenue—with blood on coat, blood on her dress of green velvet and silver cloth, and blood on the silver flappers.

Calm and poised, but her slim French-heeled shoes beat the floor, twirled nervously, and crossed and recrossed themselves.

Springer First Witness.

Those twinkling feet had danced her into Oberbeck's heart, when she was Belle Brown, cabaret girl; that had carried her to— and from—a bridle path romance with Gaertner, wealthy manufacturer; that had stolen her into a "palace" with a young married man—now the man to be tried.

The opening statement to the prosecution was made by Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Hamilton; that for the defense was waived by Nash and Abern, and Marshall Solberg, Dr. Joseph Springer, coroner's physician, was called as first witness for the state.

He testified to examining the body at 4:45 a.m. the morning of March 12, and stated that there were no powder burns near the wound where the bullet had entered near the right temple.

"A gun must be held within fifteen inches or so to make powder burns," he explained.

Scots at Suicide Theory.

"From the absence of these, is it your opinion that he did not shoot himself?" asked Mr. Hamilton.

"He did not," was the answer.

In cross-questioning, Michael Abern, counsel for the defense, tried to get the documents to place a pistol at the presumed killer's disposal, while he posed as Law committing suicide. He clicked the revolver.

"There! You see, he could have killed himself!" said Mr. Abern.

"He could not!" answered Dr. Springer crisply.

He also identified the gun bottle which was found broken on the floor of the car. Belva's jury was satisfied for their lack of prejudices in favor of the Volstead act, peeped up a bit at sight of this, and Belva leaned forward. But it was empty.

Sgt. Quinn and Patrolman Fitzgerald told of finding the dead body and of tracing the owner of the car to the license number. Detective William Sullivan went to the owner's address, he said, and found Mrs. Gaertner, in a bath robe, with the blood drenched clothes on the floor.

She couldn't shake her head nor appraise at the testimony, for she doesn't "know much," but she could show impatience as the officers fumbled in describing her clothes. But to his relief—they were admitted in evidence; the mashed hat and rumpled coat, the "one more struggle and I'm free" dress, and the flimsy slippers.

Deserve Cafeteria Scene.

According to Dr. Springer, and the police officers, Mrs. Gaertner, who they talked to her, was sober early that morning. Bert Brown, foreman of the Gingham Inn, was also called to prove this point. He said that Law and Mrs. Gaertner had come to the inn, at 6th street and Cottage Grove avenue, five or six times previous to the night of the shooting, and that evening had arrived about 10 o'clock and stayed an hour and a half.

According to his statement, the Gingham Inn is matched in dryness only by the Sahara; no liquor is sold there, no liquor is brought there on table, floor, or counter, and the couple, who arrived sober, must have been in the same condition.

"You're saying that to protect the place where you're employed!" fared the counsel for the defense.

The statement Mrs. Gaertner had made at the police station early in the morning was denied by Judge Lindberg, but Sergeant William Abern testified as to the points she had been questioned on.

"She said Law was at her house at 9 o'clock that night," he said, "and when they left for the Gingham Inn she got her ex-husband's gun, for which she had been saving, and put it in the pocket of the coat."

With similar aplomb, Mrs. Gaertner, most "stylish" of "Murderers" Row, fastened "shocks" gathered up her white kid gloves as court was adjourned, and swept out.

FOLKS, WE HAVE WITH US TODAY OLD MAN WORM

Registers at Museum from Cambrian Age.

Unless you can trace your ancestry back to a worm hole in a sandstone ledge on a cliff in the Adirondacks, you haven't any real claim to "first family" glory. That's what Dr. Henry W. Nichols, assistant curator of the Field museum, says. He should know, for he's been studying some new additions to the museum's noted geological display, which are intriguing scientists throughout the country.

These specimens are pieces of sandstone, taken from a ledge near Potsdam, N. Y., which show tiny worm holes. Since man is but a highly developed animal, perhaps these worm holes were the homes of the ancestors of the ancestors of man. The sandstone, said by Dr. Nichols to be the oldest rock formation bearing signs of life to have come to the knowledge of the world, was once a sea beast though it is now some thousands of feet above sea level.

Look Like Clamshells.

In this marine life, tiny fossils looking something like little clam shells, formation that suggest worms or well-preserved fossils of trilobites, energetic citizens of those days, who resembled a horseshoe crab in shape and grew as large as 18 inches long.

Packed closely and plainly to be seen, these animals may be the grandfathers a few million times removed, of the mastodon, the dinosaur, and the glyptodon—all fine big animals who spanned these parts millions of years ago.

REIZED AS THIEF.

Albert Danglert, 71st Prairie avenue, was arrested yesterday afternoon. He was charged, he had snatched a notebook from Mrs. Helen Clemens, 2821 Cambridge avenue.

A Dash of Mystery.

To the ancient austerity of this cross-section of "oldest inhabitants" is added a dash of mystery for among the face of one stone taken from the ledge is the plain trail of some large tracks. The tracks look as if made by flippers that dug into the sand, and the animal which made them was a restless chap, for he has trailed all over the face of the sand.

No animal now identified by science could have made the tracks. So, another dash of mystery.

One of the dim ages ago has been added to the list of the trilobites found there.

FRENCH RADICAL DEPUTIES NAME PAINLEVE CHIEF

BY HENRY WALES.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign Service.)

(Overseas: 1924. By The Chicago Tribune.)

PARIS, June 4.—Paul Painleve was

this afternoon elected president of the chamber of deputies as a step to a measure to succeed President Millerand, who is expected to be forced to resign

within the week.

As left block candidate, M. Painleve obtained 236 votes to 208 for M. Magrin, who was M. Poincaré's war minister.

The communistic party came 25

ballots for André Malraux, who served as naval minister under Millerand.

Half an hour after M. Painleve's election, he was summoned to the Elysée palace to a conference with President Millerand regarding the next

Premier. He will suggest Edouard

Harriet, who if he carries out the plans of the extreme radicals, will insist on M. Millerand's resignation before he forms a government. This will bring about a presidential crisis.

M. Doumergue, president of the senate, will also confer with M. Millerand tomorrow.

Reds interrupt Painleve.

M. Painleve's speech after taking the chair as president of the chamber was constantly interrupted by communist demonstrations. M. Painleve, speaking according to M. Millerand, declared:

"The country has spoken—every body must bow and give way before the decision."

The new chief of the chamber asserted the elections had proved France was not imperialistic.

France will never forget her ancient friend, the man who helped her in her hour of need."

World peace through the Wilsonian policy of diplomacy in France, supported by the United States and Great Britain, is his goal. M. Herriot, the stocky mayor of Lyons and future premier of France, told the Anglo-American Press association at a luncheon today:

"My program is extremely simple—I want peace," he said. "It is the duty of France, Great Britain and America to lead the world's nations down the broad path of peace. I hope to be able to do my part with Anglo-Saxon help."

"The trouble with today's politics is that it is like a sort of game in which the opposing forces use every method to win points and beat rivals. Too many statesmen use secret and hidden methods. I want to play politics just openly. What I were dealing in was a private affair with friends. While in power I will welcome the fullest publicity of every government.

Promises to Tell All.

"If you journalists want a story come to see me, or my associates. We will tell everything. You may be opinion disagrees with yours. The journalists not to believe malicious or unfounded stories, but to come to me."

M. Herriot again expressed a policy of strengthening international bodies such as the League of Nations, the Hague court, and the International Labor Bureau.

DEMANDS CANADA PUT UP TARIFF BAR TO BRITAIN

Ottawa, Ont., June 4.—(Special.)

Changing that British manufacturers are dumping goods into Canada, Senator David of the government party moved for the repeal of the British preference in favor of the Bolsheviks under the British government grants Canada a reciprocal tariff on Canadian goods. He demanded that at least the preferential duty be suspended until a new agreement has been reached between the Canadian and British labor governments.

Senator David contended that while Canada had made preference reductions to British manufacturers nothing was being granted to Canada in return and that Canadian industries were being dealt a severe blow.

(London, dispatch Tuesday night said it was reported through Rome and Brindisi that Albanian nationalists had captured Tirana after fighting in which 100 persons were killed or wounded.)

EVEN VOLSTEAD DIDN'T THINK 2.75 BEER INEBRIATING

Records of Past Exhumed
by House Wets.

BY DONALD EWING.
Washington, D. C. June 4.—[Special]
The words of Andrew Volstead himself were brought up from the past today to prove that his own prohibition act is "a legislative lie," and that even Volstead never looked on 3 per cent beer as intoxicating, much less 2.75 for which congressional authority now is sought.

As a witness to the house judiciary committee, light wine and beer bills were brought up from the past to prove that the law here. But even Volstead never looked on 3 per cent beer as intoxicating, much less 2.75 for which congressional authority now is sought.

Almost Made Getaway.

Did the state courts stand behind the chief in that raid? he asked. "Not so you can notice. The chief can be rehanded in the very hands of the government, or in a desperate gang of known criminals all armed with revolvers and shotguns, and with extra ammunition in their pockets, between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning, and five minutes after the courts opened that morning habeas corpus writs for those criminals, issued by two different judges, were placed on Chief Collins' desk."

Mr. Collins afterward stated that he had been unable to get me that morning, every one of these desperadoes, together with their guns, trucks, automobiles and boats, would have been turned loose with all chances of conviction forever gone.

"As it was, Mr. Collins turned the outlaws over to us fifteen minutes before the habeas corpus writs were served on him and they now will be tried in the Federal court without malice on the part of the government and

Mr. Volstead—No; my contention is this: That it might contain considerably more without being intoxicating."

But, that is the way it is now after Volstead changed his mind, what the transcript shows, he really said.

"Mr. Volstead—No; my contention is this: That it might contain one or two, or possibly three per cent without being intoxicating."

Other Similar Changes.

There are other similar changes showing that Volstead throughout interpreted non-intoxicating as including considerably more than the 2.75 per cent now sought and that he maintained that it was the intention to permit more than one-half of one per cent.

Fred Britton (Rep., Ill.) attacked the prohibition act in this way:

"Congress wrote a lie into the Volstead act and like all laws based on falsehood, the Volstead act has been a monumental failure and has made America the laughing stock of the world."

Despite the pique of the congressmen, it is conceded that no action will be taken at this session of Congress.

THE remarkable feature of this offer is that while the price is actually lower than you've been asked to pay for irons of ordinary quality, the new Simplex Spartan incorporates certain features that even Simplex has never offered before.

The New Simplex Cord-Set. Here, at last, is a connecting unit that defies breakage—that eliminates blown fuses and burned fingers. The plug is all-steel. It can't chip, crack, crumble or break. The Ever-Cool Ball Grip makes it easy to insert and remove the plug. While this Cord-Set is an exclusive Simplex feature it can also be purchased for use on any iron or appliance.

The New Air-Cooled Terminal Guard. The attractive terminal guard protects the terminals and keeps the connector plug cool.

The New Air-Cooled Rest-Stand. No matter what the temperature of the iron may be, you can place it on this stand without danger of scorching the cloth. This rest-stand is cooled, as your automobile engine is cooled, by providing greater heat radiating surface. The rest-stand saves constant lifting of the iron and makes the day's work lighter.

“The world’s greatest newspaper plant”

View from gallery in the press room of the Public Ledger's new printing plant, showing sections of the three giant/multiple presses capable of printing 360,000 24-page newspapers an hour. Floor room is available for doubling this capacity to provide for future growth.

“Have just seen the world’s greatest newspaper plant,” cabled Senator Paul M. Dupuy, the French publisher, to his Paris office, after visiting the mammoth new printing establishment of the Public Ledger in Philadelphia. “Discontinue work on our new plant until I return.”

Three giant presses with a capacity of 360,000 24-page newspapers an hour. One 20-cylinder multiple-color press with a capacity of 20,000 32-page Sunday newspaper sections an hour. A battery of 57 new linotype machines—the largest single installation in history.

These are just a few of the mechanical marvels assembled in this great plant—the first big unit of a vast publishing building being erected by the Public Ledger. This, when completed, will be the most efficient and perfectly organized equipment ever built for printing a newspaper.

The Public Ledger is unique in Philadelphia. Its presses never “sleep.” Thirteen regular editions—morning, noon and night—are printed daily, giving readers and advertisers alike a continuity and completeness of newspaper service without competition.

COUNCIL SEEKS NEW ARTERY FOR WEST DIVISION

Ohio Street's Adaptability to Be Studied.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The city council unanimously recognized yesterday the need of a wide street running from the lake to a boulevard west, and for that purpose ordered Commissioner of Public Works Sprague to investigate and report upon "the availability, suitability and adaptability of Ohio street." The commission was directed to report within thirty days and probably the Chicago Plan commission will also be asked to supply its data and views on this project.

The resolution and order were signed and presented by Aldermen George A. McAnally and Joseph Higgins Smith. They asserted that "the great west side with its more than 1,500,000 inhabitants is in pressing and imperative need of a broad, well paved, adequately lighted and otherwise improved thoroughfare leading from Michigan boulevard westward." Meantime Ald. Smith wants Austin avenue resurfaced, as per order presented to city council, from the lake to Campbell avenue. This he contends will aid immediately in relieving congestion.

Needed by West Side.

The two aldermen point out in their resolution that the "enormous population of the west side is now inadequately served by only Jackson and Washington avenues, which are admittedly too narrow in the central business district as well as insufficient farther west." They admit that later the west division will also be served by Roosevelt road when it is completed; but assert that "between Roosevelt road and Diversey boulevard there are no satisfactory streets to the west for light fast moving vehicles, except the two crowded and congested streets."

This street to Western avenue has no difficult barriers in the way, according to the aldermen, although between Western and California avenues it may be expensive to get a wide street through. But the artery may angle out to another street to continue west of Western avenue.

Ald. Kostner said his constituents are intensely interested in the completion of Roosevelt road, which has been hanging fire for more than thirteen years. Accordingly, the council, at the suggestion of Ald. Kostner, passed an order requiring the commissioner of public works to submit a report every sixty days showing the progress of construction on this improvement. For this improvement the voters last Monday approved of a bond issue of $1,000,000. This was deemed sufficient to complete that job.

Oppose Robey Street Opening.

The Chicago plan commission filed a protest yesterday afternoon with Mayor Dever against a proposal of the ordinance to open Robey street for a width of only sixty-six feet, which has been recommended by the committees on streets and alleys. Several years ago the people voted a bond issue of $9,300,000 to open and broaden the street to a width of eighty-six feet. It is now claimed that, among other reasons, it is proposed by the commissioners to open the street where it is now closed and build bridges and viaducts for a width of only sixty-six feet.

"What will the establishment of this precedent mean in the making of future street improvements?" asked the letter of Chairman Wacker of the plan commission to the mayor.

"It is reasonable to expect that the people will vote several million more when they learn, as they inevitably will, that the opening of Robey street is to be made principally or entirely at public expense?"

Commissioner's Position Stated.

Then follows a statement of the Chicago Plan commission on Robey street.

"When the bond issue of $9,300,000 was passed, the commissioners distributed over 250 circulars describing the improvement, and the people voted this money for an eighty-six foot wide street because they had confidence in the plan commission and believed that the city officials would carry out the plan in accordance with the way it was presented to them when they were asked to subscribe to the bond issue."

The main argument advanced against making Robey street eighty-six feet wide is that the property is too poor to stand the assessment.

The statement analyzes in detail the difference in a sixty-six foot street and an eighty-six foot wide street because they had confidence in the plan commission and believed that the city officials would carry out the plan in accordance with the way it was presented to them when they were asked to subscribe to the bond issue."

The two aldermen point out in their resolution that the "enormous population of the west side is now inadequately served by only Jackson and Washington avenues, which are admittedly too narrow in the central business district as well as insufficient farther west." They admit that later the west division will also be served by Roosevelt road when it is completed; but assert that "between Roosevelt road and Diversey boulevard there are no satisfactory streets to the west for light fast moving vehicles, except the two crowded and congested streets."

This street to Western avenue has no difficult barriers in the way, according to the aldermen, although between Western and California avenues it may be expensive to get a wide street through. But the artery may angle out to another street to continue west of Western avenue.

WHITES FREED BY CHINESE BANDITS FACE HARSHIPS

CANTON, China, June 4.—By the Associated Press [—] Their clothes torn and their hats lost, Dr. H. G. Miller and Rev. Robert A. Jaffray returned to Wuchow, released by bandits that they might arrange a ransom of $1,000 and 1,000 rifles for their fellow prisoners, E. C. Carson and Rex Ray. Miller's word was received here today.

Miller and Jaffray endured hardships in making their way back to Wuchow from the mountain stronghold of the bandits who ten days ago swooped down on the motor boat Roanoke, belonging to the American Southern Baptist mission at Wuchow, and carried off the 20 Chinese missionaries to the street where it is now closed and build bridges and viaducts for a width of only sixty-six feet.

The Roanoke was engaged on a relief expedition to aid other missionaries to Kweilin, who were reported in danger from bandits.

The pirates blindfolded their prisoners when taking them into the mountains, which added to the difficulties of the escape. The two Americans, who are now mostly retired, will have to go, and will be replaced by an organization similar to a general staff, composed of the best brains available.

WOULD CHANGE MUNICIPAL TO "WILSON PIER"

Council Gets Resolution Proposing Change.

"Woodrow Wilson pier" instead of "Municipal pier."

Resolutions suggesting such a change were introduced in the city council yesterday by Ald. Dennis A. Horan (31st) and referred to the harbors, wharves, and bridges committee for consideration. The suggestion may quell the controversy which has arisen over the consideration in passing an ordinance several weeks ago changing the name of Western Avenue to Woodrow Wilson road.

Protests from hundreds of property owners along Western avenue have caused the local industries, streets, and alleys committee to indicate that it would recommend repeal of the ordinance at the next meeting of the council.

Hold It Flying Honor.

"It is fitting that Chicago should permanently honor the memory of one of the country's greatest men," declared Ald. Horan. "Sound arguments have been made against the changing of Western avenue to Woodrow Wilson road, but no objections could be raised against a plan to name the pier Woodrow Wilson pier."

"I beg to advise your honorable body that on May 26, in conformity with powers vested in me, I removed John F. Cullerton from the office of fire commissioner," read the mayor's message to the council, "on the charge of lack of attention to duty and the further charge of causing dissension in the department."

Irregularity in Purchases.

It was charged before the investigating committee that Cullerton had purchased more than 40,000 feet of fire hose recently without council authorization. The former commissioner admitted that he had purchased new hose with expensive brass couplings attached while $5,000 worth of serviceable couplings were stored in the department warehouses.

as have the owners of the elevated lines. Various estimates have placed the value of the elevated lines at from $20,000,000 to $28,000,000.

The purchase by which the city may purchase the surface lines will be debated by the mayor in his conference this morning with the traction officials and their banker backers. It has been suggested that the city may issue $165,500,000 worth of utility certificates and take over the surface lines and all of their assets.

Among the assets are renewal, depreciation, and damage suit guarantees funds totaling $19,000,000, $6,000,000 worth of recently acquired or ordered cars and extensions.

A second purchase plan would permit the city to lease the lines to the special funds, new equipment, and real estate, making necessary the issuance of less than $164,500,000 worth of certificates by the city if it bought the lines.

Management of the surface and elevated lines while the certificates are being amortized by the city should be vested in a single board of control, the mayor is said to have told Mr. Insull.

SAAL TELLS OF VIOLET'S WOOG
RIGHT OUT LOUDQuestion Is, Who Bossed
the Affair?

Paramount in the Saal divorce case seems to be the question of whether Henry G. Saal, wealthy manufacturer, led his young wife, Violet, into the fast world which finally ended in marriage, when Violet, attracted by visions of his gold, led him, unwilling, into his love making.

Saal, on the witness stand before Superior Judge John J. Sullivan yesterday day, portrayed his version of it. Now she had pleased and coaxed him to come to her and to cause him to leave his first wife, resulting in a divorce.

"I refused her again and again," Saal said. "But finally I met her. We went everywhere together after that."

Wooing à la Cabaret.

"Everywhere," judging from the testimony, meant most of Chicago's night and Cook county's roadhouses. Saal, termed the destroyer of Violet's pure womanhood by Albert Fink, her lawyer, told of visits to places of entertainment—places where "we drank."

"Did you, Violet, when you ordered champagne, demand orange juice to make it milder?" asked Fink of the harassed husband on the witness stand.

Saal made an amused grimace, and said, with more than his usual emphasis:

"No."

Charles H. Erbstein, Saal's lawyer, broke in then.

"What is that combination drink you're talking about? I want to try it."

The Saal's first meeting, the manufacturer testified, was in January, 1919.

A friend of his, Fred Stafford, talked about a "sweet little girl he wanted me to meet," Saal said.

"I, being a married man, demurred," Saal said, "but finally I went with him to meet Violet, who then was only 17 years old. We went to the Woodlawn Park, where we ate, drank, and dined."

And on the way home, Saal said, he asked the blushing Violet if she was a "good little girl." She didn't answer. Saal said. He continued that she aroused his sympathy—"so young a girl to be out nights."

Then came Violet's impetuous and persistent wooing, Saal said. She asked him to call her on the telephone and begged him to meet her. After many refusals, he continued, he and her intimacy was begun which later provided the first Mrs. Saal with grounds for divorce.

Saal was well started on the second phase of the courtship, whenever he had a visit from Mrs. Freda Gamble, her mother, who threatened him with arrest for having given Violet $20 with which to buy two pairs of shoes. Saal testified. Saal calmed her, he declared, by taking her through his extensive factory.

"Then she didn't have you arrested?" Attorney Fink asked.

Mr. Erbstein took it upon himself to answer the question.

"Of course not. She had looked over the wealthy business and began planning for the future," he said.

Saal said his wife both seek divorce, she on charges of cruelty and he on charges that she was unkindly affectionate with Henry T. Roberts, former business manager of the H. G. Saal company. Involved in the hearing also is Mrs. Saal's plea for nullification of a prenuptial agreement by which she signed away every right to Saal's fortune.

Judge Charles A. Williams, who declared on Tuesday that he would order the defendants to trial immediately, granted a continuance when defense attorneys declared that the cases now were in the Illinois Supreme Court which tested the power of the attorney general to prosecute in state cases. It is the kind of nourishment you get that determines the Way you Feel

It is the failure of your body to get the nourishment it needs that leads to malnutrition—to mental and physical breakdown.

At least one-third of your daily nourishment should come from the carbohydrates (a great part of which comes from the grains). They are your chief source of strength and vitality—your very power to do work.

And yet—in the form in which you ordinarily get carbohydrates, they may be your chief cause of trouble instead of your chief source of power; they may form the acids and poisons that are the fertile cause of so many ills.

In order that your body may gain the full benefit of their wonderful nourishment, the carbohydrates must be prepared so that your body can digest them without harsh effort.

This delicious food is three-fourths carbohydrates—dextrinized!

THREE-FOURTHS of the content of Grape-Nuts (made of wheat and barley) are the precious carbohydrates—in the form that your body quickly and smoothly digests and turns into vigorous strength and vitality.

In Grape-Nuts the carbohydrates have been dextrinized—scientifically broken down into the form that will yield the greatest amount of nourishment to your body.

Renews your strength and vitality

There is no other food like Grape-Nuts in form or in taste. It will be a revelation to you. It tones up your system—mentally and physically you will feel more alert and alive.

And Grape-Nuts has this added value to your health: it comes in crisp, golden kernels you must chew. This chewing keeps the whole mouth healthy. It starts the proper flow of the salivary and gastric juices—the first step to sound digestion.

Eat Grape-Nuts tomorrow for breakfast. Served with milk or cream it gives you just the nourishment you need. Eat Grape-Nuts every day and see what a difference it makes in the way you feel.

All grocers have Grape-Nuts. Hotels and restaurants serve it in individual packages of a single portion.

Her Husband's Elopement By DANA BURNET

SYNOPSIS.
Rodney and Anne Kingsley have been married for eighteen months when Anne's school friend, Hilda Frank, comes to pay them a visit in their New York apartment. Rodney and Hilda fall in love with each other and Rodney, in accordance with an agreement which he and Anne had on the telephone, tells his wife what has happened. Anne, a dainty, delicate young person, is greatly disturbed by her husband's announcement, but she pulls herself together and decides Hilda and Rodney shall leave the apartment that night. This humorous story started Monday. Begin reading it today.

INSTALLMENT IV.

ANNE REFUSES TO BE LEFT BEHIND.

Rodney looked at his wife. He could not believe it was Anne who spoke. Anne, the Dresden china shepherdess, the helpless woman!

"What will you do?" he cried, out of the depths of his amazement.

"What I do doesn't matter. I'll take care of myself. The point is that you and Hilda must go away at once." She paused; and then gently dropped her bombshell, "tonight!"

"Tonight!" exclaimed Rodney and Hilda, in unison.

"Yes. Why not? Hilda's ready now, and you needn't take more than a suitcase, Rodney. I'll pack it for you," added his wife, with an air of self-sacrifice truly sublime.

Rodney was overcome. He said weakly: "But we've no place to go."

"Yes, you have. You can go with Hilda to the Riverville Inn. It's only an hour's drive. Do you remember the telephone number, Hilda?"

"Riverville 756-X," answered the Viking, promptly.

Anne rose and walked to the telephone, which was on a stand near the bedroom door. While the other two stood as if hypnotized she called the apartment house operator and asked for Riverville 756-X.

"No! Stop! Anne! I won't do any such thing," cried her husband, coming to his senses.

"Then you do love Hilda?"

"I do. Madly! But I refuse to be bullied. I refuse to be coerced."

At that moment the telephone bell rang. The three looked at each other. "I won't," said Rodney.

"It's a test," decided Hilda. "The test of your love."

"All right, then, damn it, I will!" Rodney shook his finger at his wife.

"It's your doing, remember. I didn't ask you to arrange my elopement for me, but now that you've done it, I'm free. Free, do you understand? Ha, ha!"

And he strode manfully to the telephone.

"Go get your things on, Hilda," said Anne quietly. The Viking turned, without a word, and left the room. Anne herself went into the bedroom and began to pack Rodney's suitcase. There was another suitcase, a chic, black leather one, lying on the floor. This she shoved under the bed.

Through the open door she could hear Rodney talking over the telephone.

"Hello? Is this Riverville Inn? What? I don't quite . . . O, you're French! So much the better . . . I mean, I want to reserve—that is, could you take care of a party tonight? I said a party . . . What? Only two . . . Yes, two . . . About nine o'clock. What say? O, Kingsley, Mr. Rodney Kingsley?" There was a click as he hung up the receiver; then: "Damn! I gave him my name!"

"You're not ashamed of what you're doing, are you, Rodney?" called Anne.

He appeared in the doorway.

"Of course, not!"

There was a silence. He took a step forward, stopped; then walked determinedly toward the conchial bureau and opened the drawer in which his shirts were kept.

You needn't bother to pack for me, Anne—"

"It's no bother, Rodney."

"Where are the rest of my shirts?"

"At the laundry. I'll have to mail them to you. Don't you think you'd better put in some soda mint tablets? After that supper?"

Rodney said pooh-pooh: "I didn't eat any supper. Where are my pajamas?"

"On the bed, under the bolster."

He started, glanced at the hated object and gave a harsh, gleaming laugh. "Ahh!" he exclaimed. "The bolster!" He approached it boldly, yet with a certain caution, as a lion tamer approaches the lion that may spring up and bite him. Rolling it aside with his hand, he snatched up the garments that its pink plumpness had concealed, and turned to his wife.

"Anne," he said, "I don't like running away from you. But when I think of that—that thing! I'm glad—glad! Because tonight I shall be a free-man!"

Anne maintained her admirable composure. She took the pajamas from him, folded them neatly and put them in the suitcase.

"I wish you joy of your freedom, Rodney. There! Your bag's packed."

"Thanks, Anne."

He closed and locked it; then stood holding it under his arm, wondering whether he ought to kill her. After all, they'd been married eight months. On the other hand, he was a man, and men are good as sometimes.

He settled the matter by telling him to go get his hat and coat on. He said: "Yes. No good putting it off" and walked briskly into the living room. As he was struggling into his overcoat, Hilda appeared, in full traveling costume. She carried in one hand a suitcase and in the other a large paper hat box.

"I'm ready," she said.

"So am I," answered Rodney.

"So I—I came a breathless voice from the bedroom.

She turned and saw Anne advancing toward them. She had her hat and coat on and she, too, carried a suitcase—a chic, black leather one.

"You?" queried Rodney.

Anne nodded.

"Yes, I—I packed mine before supper."

"So that's what you were doing! But—but you're not going away, too, Anne?"

"Yes."

"Where are you going?"

"I don't know, but—I can't stay here. O, no, I can't!"

"She'll go to her mother's," said Hilda, incisively.

"No, her mother's house is closed," flung back Rodney. "And her mother's in London!"

At this Anne gave a faint moan. The bag fell from her hand. Her mouth quivered.

"Call me a taxi, Rodney."

"What? Nonse! I'll take you in the car, anywhere you want."

"Call me a taxi!"

Rodney crumpled his hat in his hand and made gestures with it.

"It's Iben! God! That's what it is. Now look here, Anne!" You know there's no place for you to go but to a hotel, and you can't go to a hotel, alone at night. Were you thinking of a hotel?"

"I wasn't thinking," quavered Anne. "I was just going."

"Out into the night, eh? Well, you shan't. That's all there is to it. You shan't! You'll stay right here."

In this apartment? Now that I'm no longer your wife—?" cried Anne, dejectedly, if somewhat figuratively. "No. Never!" And snatching up her bag she started for the door. As she did so the bag burst open and the contents spilled out. Anne sank down into a chair and sobbed hysterically. "O, I can't."

"Smelling salts, Hilda!" called Rodney, and dropped to his knees beside the helpless, weeping figure. "There, Anne! It's all right. Don't cry! I'm going to desert you. It's all right. I'll see that you're taken care of."

Rodney had found the smelling salts in the bedroom. She ran up and hid the bottle under Anne's nose.

He brushed it aside. Her voice rose to a wail.

"Alone in this place? Without even a servant? I couldn't bear it. I should jump out of the window."

Rodney attempted to soothe her.

"We won't go. We'll all stay here."

"No!" cried Hilda, becoming slightly hysterical on her own account. "I refuse. This apartment stinks."

"I never want to see it again," wept Anne. "I'll kill myself before I'll stay there again."

"Please, please take me with you!"

"To the inn!" exclaimed Hilda.

"If I have to stay here, I'll lose my mind!" Anne sprang up and started toward the window. Rodney caught her arm, and looked over his shoulder at the Viking.

"We'll have to take her, Hilda. I don't see any other way."

"Well, I like that! I've planned to elope with me, and now you want to take my wife along."

"Rodney, drop to your knees on the floor and beg to stuff Anne's belongings back into her suitcase. Hilda knelt and assisted him.

"I'll not be beaten by such a transparent move as that!" she said contemptuously.

Anne stood with a handkerchief crushed to her mouth, watching them.

"My hairbrush, Hilda!"

Hilda retrieved the hair brush and flung it into the bag. Rodney got up, looking rather wildly about him.

"I don't know why we can't stay here."

"No! I couldn't endure it," wailed Anne.

"Nor I!" reassured Hilda.

"Come on, then!"

He started for the door, carrying Anne's bag as well as his own. Hilda followed him, forgetting, in the general excitement, her hat box. Anne followed, gazing wistfully about the room.

CLOSEUPS

The wee daughter of the Harold Lloyd has been named Mildred Gloria Lloyd. (Have a hunch I told you that before.)

James Morrison will be Jeremiah Pit in Vitagraph's picturization of Rafael Sabatini's novel, "Captain Blood." J. Warren Kerrigan and Jean Paige will be the leading roles.

Sarah P. MacLean and NOT Joseph C. Lincoln wrote "Cape Cod Folks" from which "Women Who Give" was adapted. Please excuse the error made in this column when the picture mentioned was reviewed.

J. E. Chandler Selected as Shriner Potentate

Kansas City, Mo., June 4.—James E. Chandler of Ararat temple, Kansas City, today became imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, by action of the imperial council, which elevated him along with other members of the imperial dyan in order of their succession.

The former is one of the most delectable ridiculous comedies I've ever witnessed. From start to finish it keeps you weak with laughter. The serious, absurd, diabolical youngster who composed "Our Gang" is the aid of the most sympathetic and understanding director, contrive to give you something you don't expect through every inch of footage.

The subtitle man helps 'em merrily along. The photographers with glee records their activities.

The plot? What plot? Tell you about it? What words! Spoil your fun that way? "Nixie" as your youngest speaking relative would say.

EVER since Jefferson, Franklin and Marshall set it down that all men are born free and equal with every good right to pursue happiness, they have been pursuing it in the shape of material acquisitions—land, money, home, family, businesses, autos, radios, etc. In other words, the pursuit of happiness is nothing more nor less than the acquisition of material things peacefully, without strife or bloodshed.

The Want-Ad Section of The Tribune is an institution which aids men in the peaceful acquisition of commodities, properties and the gainful service of others. It benefits both buyer and seller by furnishing them with a medium of interchange which operates quickly and with great internal economy. For a few dollars it will carry your message to the eyes of a million people on Sunday. At a smaller cost it reaches a half million people daily.

For a thousand times this cost you could not even buy one-cent post cards to send to this same number of people. And think how much it would cost to convey your message in person or even to phone them.

Undoubtedly Want Ads constitute the most economical, speedy, efficient means ever thought of to aid great numbers of people to acquire the things they need and desire; in other words, to help them in their constitutional right to the "pursuit of happiness."

NATIONAL OPEN PRELIMS WON BY EASTERN TEAM

BY JOE DAVIS.

Birmingham, Mich., June 4.—[Special.]—Twelve eastern golfers defeated twelve from the west 10 to 8, today in the national team match staged as a curtain raiser to the national open championship, which will start tomorrow at the Oak Hill Country club here.

Although the eastern men won the first five matches, the outcome was not decided until the four some came in. Leslie Ayton of Evanston and Dewey Weber of Chicago opposed Pat Doyle of New York and W. H. Cox of Brooklyn in this foursome.

Westerners 1 Up.

The western players reached the turn leading 1 up, and for the next three holes got an even break. Then, at the short thirteenth hole, Cox ran down a long putt for a birdie 3 and started the turn. The next two holes were halved and then Doyle, at the sixteenth hole, 244 yards, got a birdie 3 and put his side in the lead. At the short seventeenth, both the Chicago men slipped shots and Cox, getting a par 4, won the match for his side, to 2 up, and cinched the contest for the eastern team.

Interest as far as the gallery was concerned centered in the amateur match in which Bobby Jones, the national open champion, and Jess Gufford of Boston, opposed Chick Hickman and the captain of the Edgewood, who substituted for Herron, who was detained in Chicago by the illness of his baby.

Sweet Big Factor.

At the first hole, 426 yards, Gullford dropped his long iron second close to the pin and won with a birdie 3, but at the second, third, and fifth holes he was held to birdies 4, 4, and 4, respectively, the match at the seventh hole, 244 yards, being a thirty foot putt for a 3, and put his side in the lead at the ninth with another 3.

The western team did not win a hole coming in. Chick missed a short putt for a win on the twelfth hole, and at the short thirteenth, 142 yards, both teams were held to birdies 4, respectively, putting for 3s. Jones cinched the victory for his side, when, at the sixteenth hole, he put his mashie pitch two feet from the hole and scored a birdie 3, putting his side 3 up and 3 to play.

Emmett French and MacDonald Smith of the west led Johnny Farrell and Mike Brady, 1 up, at the turn, but Farrell scored birdie 3 at the tenth hole, 480 yards, and eleventh hole, 405 yards, and when Brady scored a birdie 3 at the short thirteenth they had the match well in hand.

Leo Diel, who had 73, was paired with Fred McLeod, the Washington veteran, and defeated John Hutchison and Harry Hampton of Canton, O., 2 and 1. Jock had 77; Hampton, 76, and McLeod, 77.

West Tie It Up.

The score at this stage stood 8 to 5 in favor of the east, but Eddie Loe of Lake Shore and George Kerrigan made a clean sweep of three points in their match against Joe Kirkwood of New York and Joe Turnea of Elmford, N. Y.

Loy led the side with a fine score of 72, and all four pairs, Kirkwood had 75, their best hole being 73. Kirkwood was below form with 73, and Turnea having 76. The summary:

As the teams were chosen from the leaders in the qualifying rounds at Worcester and Oak Park, several of the noted players who finished lower down the list were among those being Gene Sarason, Walter Hagen and Bobby Cruikshank, who were runner up to Bobby Jones last year.

Greens to Decide This.

For the first time in several weeks the air was balmy and the course was a little faster, but not enough to add much distance and at the long holes many of the players used wooden clubs on their approach shots.

It is generally agreed that the 72 hole championship which starts tomorrow will be decided on the putting greens. They are a few weeks behind normal due to the lack of growing weather. The approach puts on the curving greens require much manipulation. In its present condition the 72 hole will favor the long hitters and as it will be played at its full length, 4,325 yards, physical condition will count.

The Favorites.

MacDonald Smith of San Francisco, Walter Hagen of New York, and Bobby Jones and Jock Hutchison are the main favorites, with Gene Sarason, Joe Kirkwood and Bob Cruikshank running a close second.

Bobby Jones, Mike Brady and Emmett French must be given consideration, while among the younger school, John French and Leo Diel are possibilities.

G. Davison Herron of Chicago, and Cyril Hughes of Lancaster, Pa., will be the first pair out tomorrow, starting at 8:30.

DR. COOKE TO QUIT COACHING

Minneapolis, Minn., June 4.—After 27 years of continuous service as head basketball coach at the University of Minnesota, Dr. L. J. Cooke, veteran mentor, who has been intimately linked with the development of the game in American colleges, today resigned to devote his full time to his duties as assistant athletic director and ticket manager.

BADGERS KNOCK IOWA GOLFERS OUT OF RACE

MADISON, WIS., June 4.—[Special.]—

University of Iowa golfers were knocked out of a chance to tie Illinois for first place in the Big Ten title race at the short thirteenth hole. Cox ran down a long putt for a birdie 3, and Doyle, at the sixteenth hole, 244 yards, got a birdie 3 and put his side in the lead.

SANOVINO, COLT OF LORD DERBY, IS WINNER AT EPSON

THANKS, OLD BIRD

EPSON DOWNS, England, June 4.—[United News]—So highly excited was the noble Earl of Derby when he saw his horse, Sansovino, dash past the finish line as winner today that he rushed up and slapped Jockey Weston on the back, crying, "Thanks, old bird; you did splendidly and deserved to win."

EPSON DOWNS, Eng., June 4.—[By the Associated Press]—Lord Derby's "mud horse," Sansovino, with Weston up, today powed easily over the historic track, which has Epson Downs and finishing six lengths in the lead, brought to the sportsman earl for the first time in his thirty-one years of striving to breed a horse of the world's classic turf over the 141st renewal of the Derby.

Incredibly, the chestnut colt broke a stretch of 137 years of bad luck for the Derby, which the Earl of Derby is concerned, and which his representative house has been unable to win since the Derby horse Sir Peter Teazle scored for the family colors of black and white in 1787.

Downs Softens Track. It was a day for the stayers, with the turf soft from constant rain—the downpour beginning during the morning and continuing uninterruptedly demonstrated his fighting qualities. While the winner's time for the mile and a half course was 2:45.5, or 12.5 seconds slower than the record, it was unusually good when the condition of the course is considered.

Present owner St. German, with Bullock up, finished in second place. The Astor entry easily handled the heavy going and led Somerville Tattersall's Hurstwood by a neck. This is the fifth time that Lord Astor has taken second place in the great classic.

The race settled down into a close grip for the leaders over the first four furlongs. Then Sansovino began forging ahead. When the field swept into the stretch around the dreaded Tattenham corner, the black and white colt held a commanding lead, which was unmolested until he romped easily past the post.

Second by Swynford out of Hause, who had been made favorite in the event overnight, was 8 to 2 against in the betting. Lord Astor's St. German was 100 to 7 against. A field of twenty-six horses started.

American Jockeys Fall.

Two American jockeys, O'Neill and Archibald, failed to finish in the running. O'Neill came in fifth on Spalding and Archibald fourteenth on resolute, the king's entry. Donoghue, who won golden spurs with his third consecutive triumph with Papyrus last year, brought up the aero-ran.

CROWDS STAND IN RAIN

BY VINCENT SHERAN, (Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

[Copyright: 1924 by The Chicago Tribune.]

EPSON DOWNS, England, June 3.—The English crowd today showed an extraordinary good humor and patience, for the rain did everything to dampen this great event. Nevertheless, by daylight the rolling down near the course had their annual occupants—gypsies, side shows, fakers, and concessionaires, in tents, wagons or any kind of a covering which would bear advertising signs.

Every road and lane leading to Epson was choked with motors by noon, and, moving three abreast, the cars spent hours in covering the last five or six miles to the course.

Women Smoke in Stands.

In the grandstand beautifully dressed women were smoking fiercely when the third race, the Derby stakes, came around, and the bookies capitalized general uneasiness by giving only four or five to one on Sansovino. Modest looking American tourists, who looked as if they had never gambled in their lives before, plunged into the fifteen minutes which preceded the race.

There must have been thousands of Americans present, according to Scotland Yards men inspecting the crowd. To those who had never seen the Derby before it was an amazing sight as the great Epsom Downs course was filled with umbrellas, boats and cars in a horsebox. A huge silver balloon moved gently at its moorings, directing the movements of tens of thousands of automobiles. Airplanes circled above the course with photographic cameras.

Fever Never Higher.

The king and queen, the Prince of Wales, the duke and duchess of York, the duke of Connaught and all the royal princesses, except Mary, sat in the royal box. They were compelled to come in a closed carriage because of the downpour and the crowd missed its usual royal show. Hundreds of thousands of umbrellas bobbed in the air and thunderous cheering greeted members of the royal family when they took their place in their box and bowed to the human pageant underneath.

Derby Day fever, according to the regulars, never hit England harder than this year.

POLO SEASON TO OPEN TOMORROW

The first polo tournament of the season in Chicago will open tomorrow afternoon at the North Shore polo field, Lincoln avenue and Peterson road, when the Gramercy Farm team meets the Spur and Saddle team. On Sunday, Gramercy will battle the North Shore polo team. There will be an other contest the following Tuesday and on June 12 the previous winners will play a final game to determine the local championship.

EDUCATOR CALLS MODERN SCHOOL AID TO SOCIALISM

BY SCRUTATOR.

Shocked and staggered by the sudden reappearance in modern life of another grisly reminder of the thing that surviving principles of the dire folk memory, remained in little underworld lairs of ogres, giants and vampires, many men have been asking in the last few days whether there isn't something radically wrong with modern education.

Very likely education has nothing to do with such survival as have occurred, but the principles of education from the really hideous past of humanity are understood only by a few, and this writer is not one of them. However, even a layman can see how specialists in anthropology, folklore, and kindred sciences are accumulating data that will shed much light on criminal motives heretofore veiled in obscurity.

But people are probably making no mistake in asking questions about education. Undoubtedly it is headed in the direction of pampering. Some time ago in this column attention was called to the new "scientific" philosophy of education and the lesson emphasized placed upon training the individual for the struggle of life.

That the way to turn out anti-social individuals is to teach the young that society or the state, rather than themselves, is responsible for their destiny is the author's belief. Confirmation of this has come in a long letter from a superintendent of schools of one of the smaller cities of a mid-western state.

Some of his remarks may prove of interest now to business men who must pay the taxes and who will later have to employ the teachers that the schools are turning out.

He says: "As an instructor and administrator for many years, I have watched the new philosophy of education grow, and I do not believe that any one realizes more clearly than I do how much more effective it is in turning out really young people to think and think straight than it was before the mirage of a different order of things was viewed by so many hopeful ones."

The central theme of the modern education theory seems to be that more and more should be and can be done for the young. The application as it works out, convinces the pupils that they have no responsibility. The problem of getting an education is a problem of government. The work is going to be done.

"The modern educational theory has undergone many changes. The character of text-books has changed. Old arithmetics have been superseded by new arithmetics. Problems are carefully graded so that the step from one type of problems to another type is not difficult. The greatest change is the elimination of practically all problems that require application of knowledge."

"Grammar is out of date. It cannot be taught successfully without teaching the elements of thinking. Language books have taken the place of grammar. And they producing results. They appear to be unsatisfactory, for schools are adopting first one and then another

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

(Copyright: 1924: Fairchild News Service.) NEW YORK.—The dry goods market was quiet and ended with good bear offered by first and second hands for the first time in several days. Holders were inclined to shade prices to get business, but little actual trading resulted. The goods, 5.25 a yard, and at 16 $\frac{1}{2}$ in second hands. For 6x27.2, 4.75 a yard, first hands wanted 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ and these eased to 10¢. Second hand selling prices were 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢. The 7x27.6, 4.25 a yard, and new 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, 6 yards, remained unchanged in full price. Receipts 26 cars old.

NEW YORK.—There was good inquiry in the bureau market, but not a proportionate number of buyers to sell and sellers had trouble to agree on values. The sellers however, refused to grant any concessions and held firm for the asking price.

IRON AND STEEL SHOW FURTHER DROP IN OUTPUT

By O. A. MATHER.

The midweek industrial reviews offer small hope of any immediate revival in iron and steel production and consumption in automobile output were the outstanding features. There was only cold comfort in the prediction that these industries are now about "at the bottom," having corrected overexpansion earlier in the year.

Curtailment in pig iron production last month is described as "unparalleled" for a single month by the Iron Assn. The May output dropped to 84,354 tons a day, a decline of 23,121 tons a day from the April average. This curtailment exceeds the forced decline attending the great steel strike in October, 1919, and the pace in 1907.

Hanging at Half Capacity.

Steel mill operations now are a shade below 50 per cent of capacity, and this level bids fair to be maintained this month. Automobile buying has dropped decidedly and demands from the building industry are only about half as large as the weekly volume of the first four months of the year.

It is evident that steel and iron producers, finding consumers determined to purchase only for immediate needs, in turn have decided to gear their output to immediate orders. This does not mean that production has fallen to a "low record." Even last month iron production was well above the average for the three months as the low mark of 1921. Furthermore, during the last week

there has been improvement in pig iron buying and steel inquiries.

Auto Shipments Decrease.

The number of automobiles shipped from the factories in May was somewhat less than the April total and considerably less than that of May last year. Automobile Industries say: "It is expected that June, which usually is a bumper month, will be a comparatively slow one in production."

Stacking and price shading in manufactures, however, is to be lightered

the burdens of the farmer from the greater increase in prices of what he buys than of what he sells. Average prices declined about half of 1 per cent in May,

according to Dumb's compilation.

The "index number" of prices now stands 4 per cent below this year's highest figure and the level of a year ago. The decline has been limited chiefly to textiles and metals and has hardly affected breadstuffs on the average.

Pennock Oil Co. Makes.

Dividend now declared yesterday.

The Pennock Oil company declared a 20 per cent dividend, payable July 25 to stock of record July 10, and the regular quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents per

July 25 to stock of record July 16. The American Cyanimid company declared an extra dividend of 50¢ on its common stock. The Chicago Nipple company declared an extra dividend of 50¢ on its class A stock on account of bank dividens.

The Pan-American Petroleum company announced a new offer of exchange for Mexican Petroleum stock. These shares of Pan-Americans are offered on the share of Mexican Petroleum.

The original offer several years ago was for one share, and this recently was increased to two and one-half shares for one. The Pan-American company owns more than 50 per cent of Mexican Petroleum stock.

BULLETIN.
Richmond, Va., June 5.—Former Gov. Frank Lowden of Illinois, here to a meeting of Holstein breeders in Richmond this afternoon, refused to deny that he would indeed make any come Cleveland and Washington patches that he would be a Republican Vice Presidential candidate. President Coolidge let it be known that Mr. Coolidge would be "very acceptable running mate."

Cleveland, O., June 5.—(UPI)—President Coolidge passed the word that former Gov. Frank G. Lowden of Illinois, acceptable to him as his running mate, is every reason to be Mr. Lowden, who was the chief line party leaders for 1920, will not result a draw.

This word came to Cleveland and crystallized the sentiment running strong toward Lowden. It was made plain that Coolidge, in disclosing his support of Lowden, had not departed from policy and was still to the convention no long a champion mate to represent the wing of the party. The President was carefully pointed out, making it known that he regarded Lowden as very acceptable convention choice to pick him.

Dawes Dares Coolidge.
All this fitted in with a running tide for the former Illinois, which today had entirely out the talk for Charles G. Dawes, and put Charles G. Dawes out of the running, if he ever was for Mr. Hoover had planned he did not want the job.

Delegates and committeemen from the states of the north, where the La Follette was openly admitted as a factor in the campaign, added to the rapidly mounting sentiment for Lowden. That Lowden was the man to do the ticket most good in agricultural states west of the Mississippi and who would draw from the rural vote which might be attracted elsewhere. If the committeemen and delegates on the ground were right, a vice presidential nomination undoubtedly would be Lowden's.

Contests Disposed of.
